Description

WireMate is an enclosed device that provides for the orderly realignment and consolidation of tangling wires of varying thickness which exist with most electronic equipment setups. This ranges from power cords, telephone lines, speaker cables to DSL lines. It only has only two parts, a base and cover, and a very unique and inclusive design setting it apart from all other partial solutions. This device has been engineered and manufactured to encase a surprisingly large amount of wires/cables. Once the wires are easily wrapped around the integrated posts an attractive cover is provided which firmly snaps on the base concealing the wires. The device, through the provided double sided tape which works in all install situations (or by optional inserts/screws), can be mounted to wall, desk panel, configuration component or remain free standing. Besides cleaning up the clutter and presenting a tidy appearance it in turn serves to prevent accidents, ensures cable connection integrity and keeps the area clean.
