Description

The Kublai series tower chassis are made for computer enthusiasts who require a ferocious and swift system performance and a finely balanced system with cooling and quietness but without the extra features from the flagship Temjin series chassis. Constructed with steel body and aluminum front panel, the Kublai tower chassis retains the best qualities from both types of metal. The KL02 is finely finished in the same method that follows SilverStone's Temjin series. With creative movable drive bays, KL02 also provides user a flexible interior layout. The superior airflow design and side venting holes illustrate that the chassis is highly organized and tuned to deliver great cooling performance for any modern components with a pair of standard 120mm fans. For those looking to build a medium sized system with high quality enclosure, the KL02 is an excellent choice.

Features

- Mid-size tower chassis for all around integration
- Temjin quality aluminum finish and construction with removable drive bays
- Dual 120mm fans included for excellent cooling

- Perforated expansion slot cover for graphics card cooling
- Highly flexible drive storage options with hot-swappable SATA adapter
- High airflow design (via side venting holes)
